

Don't Spray Away

During the summer, the grass withers.
It wilts and dries and turns all yellow.
Nature runs itself that way, so humans should hold back.

Make a change today.
But some cannot bear the thought.
They take plenty of water to spray their grass,
Making it shiny and green, though close to dead.

Make a change today.
Grass does not need your help.
The rain will come and go. The grass will survive.
It has thrived even before you've arrived.

Make a change today.
Think about other people.
Those without access to clean water.
Why are you wasting it on grass,
When people could quench their thirst?
Las Vegas. Massive swimming pools. Vast golf courses.
Using water in the wrong places.
Angola. Bahrain. Cape Town.
There are places who need water.

Make a change today.
Conserve water resources.
Use water wisely.
Turn off your lawn's water sprinkler,
And save the grass from being drenched.

Written by Shalom Y.